A note for our PTA and parents

Dear PTA, Friends and families,

This year our children have been taking part in Last Chance to Paint, a free art and nature project led by the acclaimed artist John Dyer, working with the Eden Project and Born Free. Through live webinars, paint-along lessons and real expeditions to rainforests, savannahs and tiger reserves, our pupils have been learning to paint endangered animals and the people and places that care for them. Their work can be seen in the online World Gallery alongside young artists from more than 30 countries.

Last Chance to Paint is free for every school and always will be. It is a not-for-profit project, and its expeditions, live webinars and lessons are funded by people and schools who value it. In 2027 the team travels to Madagascar, and will bring that expedition live to our classroom.

We would love our school to become a Supporting School. The suggested gift is £50, £100 or £250 for the school year, and any amount is welcome. Supporting Schools receive a thank-you certificate, a gold star on the Schools Taking Part list, and a thank-you by name during a live webinar, which the children love to hear.

The project can send a proper invoice to the school or PTA, or you can give by card at lastchancetopaint.com/supporting-schools.

Thank you for considering it.
